

Hi all, this is Eleanor's son, Pat Rhoads. I wanted to let you know that Eleanor passed away yesterday morning. She'd been having some health problems for some time, but unbeknownst to us, she also had cancer. She was found unconscious last Monday and taken to the hospital, where multiple scans of her body found tumors in her lungs, liver, and brain. The doctors told us that the tumors were too far advanced to effectively treat, so we decided to just keep mom comfortable. She never once fully regained consciousness during her time in the hospital, and she passed away peacefully yesterday morning shortly after 2 a.m.

As per her wishes, her remains will be cremated and her ashes scattered. My sisters and I have not yet discussed a service for her, but I will let you know here whatever plans we do make.

Thank the good Lord above that she is pain free, at peace, and reunited with her late husband Craig.
